

Joe Kelly

Whitetail Expert

Joe Kelly is a native South Carolinian who lives in Mountville, in the Piedmont section of the state. He has studied and hunted all forms of wildlife for more than 35 years and has literally spent hundreds of hours just watching wildlife in their natural habitat. Joe has learned enough about wildlife to be able to understand what, and more importantly why, they do the things they do. He'll share his knowledge of whitetail habits with you at the Expo.

The South Carolina SLAM Award was presented to Joe by Governor Richard Riley. To win this award, an outdoorsman must kill a record book buck or a 19# or larger wild turkey plus catch a 7 1/2 # or better bass, a 20# or larger striped bass as well as a trout measuring over 14 inches.

Joe co-authored a "How To" book titled "Joe Kelly's Tactics for Trophy Whitetail". He's produced 13 outdoor videos covering whitetail, turkey and hog hunting techniques. Joe has been featured in Field and Stream, Outdoor Life, North American Whitetail and more. Joe travels extensively throughout the United States exhibiting his Whitetail Collections and holding seminars at outdoor shows.

Joe Kelly & Sons Outdoors Presents

The Northwest Giants Whitetail Collection

Joe Kelly & Son Outdoors collection includes some of the finest whitetails from across Northwestern United States and Canada. This display boasts whitetails scoring in the 170 to 250 range. The racks above are just samples of what's in the whole collection, which also includes a full body mount of the famous Hanson Buck, still the Typical World Record.

The Hanson Buck alone is worth the price of admission.
